Job Description	[Job summary] As an Android engineer at the company, I will be in charge of the development of the Android side of the "Sukedachi app". [Job details] You will proceed with the project while working closely with designers, backend engineers, and the business side. We use an agile development method, where each sprint is two weeks long. Once the requirements are shared with the business department and the PM and engineers have finalized the requirements, the designer creates the design, and the engineer moves on to estimating man-hours and detailed design. At the beginning of each week, the development team once again confirms what needs to be done for the week, and at the end of the week, we review it. 【charm】 ・As we aim to be a platform that can support the construction industry from multiple angles, it is an environment where you can gain experience in product development for various industries, including not only the matching business but also the EC business, fintech business, and new businesses that will be launched in the future. ・As for your future career path, you can choose any direction you want, from tech lead (specialist) to management.
