Job Description	[Job summary] You will be responsible for the overall infrastructure construction and operation of the company's online services. [Job details] ■Building and operating infrastructure for in-house service operations We offer a variety of content such as smartphone apps, social games, and browser games, so user traffic will increase rapidly. You will be responsible for ensuring efficient and stable service operation. ■Main duties: Construction, operation, and maintenance of Linux servers Recently, there has been an increase in coordination work between MSPs, cloud providers, and projects, so the number of cases where I am involved in upstream processes such as negotiation and requirements definition is increasing. As this is a rapidly growing service, we encourage you to actively take on new challenges without any work boundaries. <Career image> First, you will be in charge of operating existing titles, understanding the system configuration, and learning the roles and coordination methods of partners and other departments. After that, you will be involved in the launch stage of a new title, learning everything from upstream processes such as requirements definition and design to construction and operation verification, and eventually working as a leader responsible for system management of multiple titles.
